

The finishing touch

Electroplating is the process of coating an object with a thin layer of metal using an electric current to:

- Improve the surface quality
- Resist abrasion and corrosion
- Improve the metal's appearance
- Provide luxurious colours to a home's decor

The finishing touch in manufacturing

At Allegion, we help keep people safe and secure where they live, work and visit. With more than 30 brands sold in almost 130 countries across the globe, we specialise in security around the doorway and beyond: everything from residential and commercial door levers, door closers and exit devices, door accessories, to electronic locks and access control systems.

We take this responsibility seriously. Our team of designers, engineers and technical experts don't just create products, they solve problems. With a proud pioneering history, Allegion continues to champion trailblazing ideas and innovations.

Allegion New Zealand's fully automated electroplating production line is an integral element to our local manufacturing. Specialised metal finishing capabilities complement our local innovation, design and manufacturing.

Global expertise, local execution.

Oil Rubbed Bronze

Perfect for rustic, down-to-earth living spaces. Oil Rubbed Bronze is a decorative plating feature which provides a dark brushed look, with hints of the underling brass tones beneath it. Oil Rubbed Bronze is a 'living finish' which will mature over time to develop a patina, providing a natural aged feel to the surface.

Satin Brass

Bold without being over the top, with the perfect amount of understated style. With a smooth matt finish that's subtle yet courageous, it doesn't show fingerprints or water spots and resists tarnish when lacquered. Satin Brass unlacquered is a 'living finish' which will mature over time to develop a patina, providing a natural aged feel to the metal surface. Available in lacquered or unlacquered finish options.

Choosing the best finish for your design project

The finish on door hardware is just that—the final touch that turns a functional piece of hardware into an attractive design element. But not all finishes are the same.

- Application

Consideration to the type of project is crucial. High volume usage, a need for daily cleaning, or perhaps a vintage design for a building should be factored into the finish decision.

- Geographic region

Whether the product is intended for interior or exterior use, coastal or suburban, it is important to understand the difference in performance of each finish to meet your longevity expectations.

- Suite potential

Select door hardware finishes to complement plumbing, lighting and paint features, creating harmony within your living spaces.

High quality products.
